

As Seen in Charlotte magazine

Webber Dentistry

Spurgeon W. Webber III, DDS

Dr. Spurgeon Webber, III of Webber Dentistry runs his practice with the same tradition of excellence displayed by his mentors. Dr. Webber, whose approach is one of consummate gentleness, grew up working in his father's dental practice. Each summer he witnessed his father, Dr. Spurgeon Webber, Jr., and other African American dentists in the community, such as – Drs. Reginald Hawkins, Tommy Nash and Thomas Mack, all of whom he considers his mentors. He observed their work ethic and how they strived to deliver the best service possible to their patients, while steadily working to gain equality, access and opportunities for the community at large.

“As a native of Charlotte, I’ve witnessed the growth of the city and as a practice, we’ve grown along with it,” says Dr. Webber, who has been practicing family dentistry more than 20 years. “Webber Dentistry is a part of this community.”

Webber Dentistry is a second-generation dental practice that has proudly served the Charlotte community since 1961. With an established tradition of providing compassionate care, while at the same time utilizing technological advances to deliver exceptional service, the practice has successfully earned a reputation for being socially and environmentally conscious.

Dr. Webber's commitment is displayed through his volunteer efforts, working with area children who can't afford dental care and working with various outreach programs. His concern for environmentally protecting his patients from radiation exposure led him to switch from traditional to digital x-rays. The practice – with patients ranging from national celebrities and local professional athletes to the homeless – is expanding to a second office built with green construction guidelines in SouthPark to better serve the community.

Dr. Webber wants every patient's experience to be pleasant, whether it's the convenient location, outcome of the procedure, patient's physical comfort or the relationship of trust built between dentist and patient.

Webber Dentistry offers comprehensive, state-of-the-art general dentistry, as well as laser, cosmetic/reconstructive dentistry, implants, and Invisalign. Conscious sedation and local and general anesthesia are also available.

“It's delightful to hear a patient ask: ‘Are we done?’” says Dr. Webber, “And know we've provided a pain-free experience.”

Dr. Webber continues that tradition of service. He is married to former news anchor Sterlin Benson Webber; they have a young daughter, Symphony..

